WAPELLO, IOWA, Sept. 25th. A Balloon ascension, by Prof. J. H. Boley, was advertised to take place at the fair grounds near this crown gathered to witness it. At half past five o'clock the balloon was cut loose, Boley hanging by his hands to a horrizontal bar beneath. Just after the balloon, which was inflated with hot air, left the ground it took fire near the mouth. Bolley did not apparently see the fire until he was too high to let go with safety, but held on until he reached an altitude of twelve or fifteen hundred feet, when the canvass which held the hoop burned ness of the mill until this week, a quarter of a mile from the place doing good work.
